Dear Mr. Gates:

The current fluidity in Soviet policy has led us to reschedule our congressional meeting on U.S.-Soviet policy originally set for December 8 and 9 to sometime after the convening of the new Congress. The unscheduled foreign travel commitments of a number of key Members crucial to a dialogue, reinforces the need for a time change. We hope this time change will not be too inconvenient, and we will notify you of the new arrangements as soon as we have rescheduled.

Sincerely,

James H. Billington

Dear Mr. Gates:

I would like to invite you to be a central participant in a seminar for the Congressional leadership on U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union on December 8-9, 1988, here at the Library of Congress. We are asking you to participate in an informal discussion which will not require any formal preparation on your part, but which will draw on your own expertise and interest. The primary audience for the seminar will be Members who hold senior leadership positions and who serve on pertinent committees.

The seminar will be a two-day dialogue focusing on the major issues in U.S.-Soviet relations--such as arms control, regional issues, human rights, and commercial relations. Our goal will be to develop assessments that may assist the leadership of the 101st Congress, particularly during discussions of the budget process, policy analyses and hearings, ratification of treaties, and legislation. We hope to develop a framework that will encompass partisan and subjective differences and illuminate the pros and cons in the debate on issues relating to U.S.-Soviet policy.

I would especially like to invite you and you wife to the closing dinner on Friday, December 9, at 6:30 p.m. in the Montpelier Room, at which a leading Soviet official will speak to the range of issues addressed during our symposium.

I look forward to hearing from you and hope that your schedule allows your participation in this important program. Please respond to Linda Cox in the Congressional Research Service, Office of Special Programs, at (202) 287-7904 (after October 24, 1988 the phone number will be (202) 707-7904).

Sincerely,

James H. Billington
